LIBERALS REGAIN POWER IN NOVA SCOTIA

Serious Warfare On Austro-German Border Is Feared

Thousands of Austrian Exiles, Many Armed, String Along Frontier Creating Menace—France Approves Increase in Dollfuss Army—Nations Plan Assistance

PARIS, Aug. 22 (AP).—Suddenly renewed fear of armed conflict along the Austro-German border became today one of the dangers complicating little Austria's political and economic plight. Reports from Austria said 6,000 or 8,000 exiles, many with shotguns and rifles, were strung along the frontier, creating a menace of guerrilla warfare and even organized invasion.

(When the fast growing Austrian Nazi party, agitating for union with Germany, and declaring allegiance to Chancellor Hitler, was ordered outlawed by the Dollfuss Government, many were exiled or fled to Germany to escape arrest.)

FRANCE APPROVES PLAN
To meet this new crisis, France has approved the plan of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss to increase his present army of 22,000 to 30,000, the limit authorized by the Saint Germain peace treaty. It is believed Great Britain and Italy likewise will sanction the increase.

IF Austria is adequately guarded against such a threat, as is reported on the frontier, the French believe the recent loan of $20,000,000 (nominal $48,000,000) from the League of Nations, and the lifting of some French quota restrictions on Austrian exports, will revive commerce in that country.

WOULD HELP TEMPORARILY
It is believed this will at least help Austria pending the necessary lengthy discussions of a proposed economic union or close commercial alliance among Austria, Hungary and the Little Entente—Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

WILL NOT GO TO DETROIT PROBE

Herbert Hoover Declines Invitation to Give Evidence at Banking Inquiry

DETROIT, Aug. 22 (AP).—Officials of Detroit's bank investigating jury announced tonight they would issue a statement tomorrow regarding what further action they would take as a result of Herbert Hoover's refusal to come to the city as a witness in the inquiry into the closing of the First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

Appraisal of the former President's decision a few hours after they had sent him an "earnest request" for his testimony, Prosecutor Harry B. Tamm and Judge Harry B. Keldan, who constitute the one-man jury, went into conference.

NOTHING TO SAY
"I have nothing to say tonight in connection with Mr. Hoover's message," said Judge Keldan. "I shall consult Mr. Tamm and study the telegram carefully and my further plans will be announced in the morning."

The former President's testimony was urged by United States Senator James C. McLaughlin, Michigan Republican, who today concluded his own "inside story" of Administration policies.

BLAMES ADMINISTRATION
The Canadian-born Senator, who had been on the stand for four days, charged most of the fault for the bank closings here was due to actions of bankers, but an Administration which "did not want to see an epidemic of bank failures during a depression."

He ordered only a moderate write-down of losses in the two banks, although they knew them to be in unimpaired condition nearly a year before the bank holiday.

CUT IN TARIFF ON BEER ASKED

U.S. Importers Present Petition and Figures in Pleading for Cheaper Foreign Brew

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP).—Importers cited the poetry of the "Stein Song" of old Heidelberg and the pathos of the man who wants English ale for his stomach's sake, in pleas before the tariff commission today, for a 50 per cent cut in the duty on foreign brew.

They noted many a statistic, too, to prove the way of the beer and ale importer is unduly difficult. Then they asked United States to make a "friendly gesture toward twenty-five beer-drinking nations" by reducing the tariff on imported beer from $1 to 50 cents per gallon, or from $31 to $15.50 per barrel.

COMMITTEES WORKING ON WHEAT PLANS

Tackling Problem of Establishment of International Advisory Board

SEEK DEFINITION FOR WORLD PRICE

LONDON, Aug. 22 (CP).—Committees of the World Wheat Conference today worked busily on plans for establishment of an international advisory board, and for a concrete definition of a world price for wheat which may be used as a measuring rod for tariff reductions expected from importing countries, while the World Wheat Conference itself prepared to resume tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow afternoon, replies of the governments of importing countries to the draft agreement submitted by exporting nations will probably be at hand, and the conference will be in a better position to gauge the prospect of a worldwide agreement towards restoring world wheat markets.

A KNOTTY PROBLEM
The committee charged with the problem of determining how the price of wheat would be fixed for a fixed price is necessary in line with the draft agreement which calls for tariff reductions by importing countries accordingly as the price of wheat rises, outside of the problem to decide. There was the question of what grade of wheat would be taken, where the price would be decided—in Liverpool, Winnipeg, Chicago or on the Continent—and whether this price should be the price of a certain state of the mean price of a certain period. And also, whether this price should be expressed in terms of gold.

DRAFT AGREEMENT
The draft agreement submitted by the exporting nations, to which replies of the governments of importing countries are expected tomorrow afternoon, calls upon the importing countries to agree to reduce customs taxes on wheat, in accordance with the rise in the world price, to maintain the equality of their bread, and to remove the various tariff restrictions against import of wheat that have been imposed in recent years, outside of customs tariffs, such as the quota requirement for domestic millers.

EXPORTERS READY
If the importing countries show sufficient agreement with these demands, then the exporters—big overseas exporters of Canada, Australia, the Argentine and the United States, and the chief European exporters, countries of the Danubian Basin, already have worked out a plan among themselves for restricting production and for systematically exporting under some sort of a quota plan.

HALIFAX, Aug. 22 (CP).—Clinging to the slippery side of a speeding motor car with doors and windows locked, Constable Burgin, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was taken for a nerve-racking ride today after the fleeing driver leaped from the machine. The officer failed to get his man, but he did bring the car to a halt after crashing his arm through the driver's window and guiding the sedan to safety. He also got a case and a keg of contraband liquor.

BANISHED FROM JAPAN
TOKYO, Aug. 22 (AP).—Alexander Bruckman, of Cleveland, was arrested during a police drive against "foreign radicals and pacifists" today and ordered to leave Japan immediately.

ARE IMPORTING ARMS
P. J. Rutledge, Minister of Justice, referring in the Senate tonight to circumstances which led the Government to ban the blue shirts, said the Government had sufficient information that the group was a heavily armed force and that it was importing arms into the Free State.

SEVEN MEN AND BOYS KILLED IN COLLISION
LUMBERTON, N.C., Aug. 22 (AP).—Seven men and boys, riding in a tobacco truck, were killed here today as the machine sped around a blind corner and crashed head-on into a Seaboard Airline passenger train at a grade crossing. Four others were injured.

ON ICELAND FIORD
REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 22 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife landed this evening at Eki Fjord, on the east coast of Iceland, about five and a half hours after they had taken off from Reykjavik without announcing their destination.

Girl Battles With Octopus

LEON F. Douglass, inventor and scientist of Menlo Park, Cal., invented an "inverted periscope" camera designed to take motion pictures under water. His daughter, Florence, volunteered to battle with an octopus in a tank of water, in order that the new camera could be tested. Photograph shows Miss Douglass swimming down to meet the octopus. She bore the marks of the beast on her arms and legs for some days after.

Professor Is No Believer in Law To Aid Recovery

Grants Sincerity of President Roosevelt But Has Poor Opinion of N.R.A. as Factor in Permanent Prosperity of United States—Nation Will Be Living on Capital

BANFF, Aug. 22 (CP).—Depreciation of the United States dollar was necessary if that country's National Recovery Act was to be successful, said T. E. Gregory, of the University of London, in the course of a discussion of this measure at the Institute of Pacific Relations tonight. Professor Gregory intimated Canada was inevitably affected in the success or failure of the programme.

SAYS BANNING TYRANNIC ACT

General O'Duffy Maintains Blue Shirts Legal but Government Differs

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 22 (AP).—Irish Free State Government tonight banned the Blue Shirt National Guard organization of General Eoin O'Duffy by proclamation and set up a military tribunal to operate under the Public Safety Act.

This action was in line with predictions which followed a number of parades throughout the Gaeltacht last Sunday. President Eamon De Valera declared on Sunday night that if reports were received of demonstrations made by uniformed men an outlawing proclamation would surely follow.

WAITS PEOPLE'S VERDICT
O'Duffy, informed of the proclamation, said: "I have nothing to say except the National Guard awaits the verdict of the people."

The blue shirt leader has maintained his organization is legal, and, if the Government should declare otherwise, it would be "guilty of a positive act of tyranny."

Members of the National Guard will be liable to arrestment before the tribunal unless they resign. The tribunal may assess any sentence, including death.

THOUSANDS CRASHED
Four thousand banks had crashed in the United States, with their customers caught in the wreckage. He claimed it entirely unfair to judge the Canadian banking system in a time of acute depression. The long view over a period of years was the only safe estimate.

Dr. Swanson was one of the important witnesses to which the commission headed by Lord Macmillan listened in the course of its first Saskatchewan sitting. Later, Frank Eliason, secretary of the Saskatchewan Branch, United Farmers of Canada, supplemented a brief filed earlier in the day with some practical detail. The homes of 75 per cent of Saskatchewan farmers were depleted of clothing, he said. Farm machinery had depreciated to the point of uselessness for lack of cash.

Harrington Government Decisively Defeated in Bitterly Waged Contest

Five Conservative Ministers Lose Fight—Angus L. Macdonald Will Head New Administration—Independents and Commonwealth Federationists Not Factors—Margins Narrow

HALIFAX, Aug. 22 (CP).—Nova Scotia returned to its first love today, when, as a result of the general provincial election, it entrusted the Liberal party headed by Angus L. Macdonald with the administration of its affairs for the next five years. Hon. G. S. Harrington, heading the defeated Conservative Government, won his own seat in Cape Breton South by a small margin, but all his colleagues in the administration lost to their Liberal opponents. The results showed twenty-one Liberals and eight Conservatives were elected. One seat is in doubt.

The six Independent candidates were not a factor in the contest.

MINISTERS DEFEATED
The sweeping Liberal victory saw five members of the previous Conservative government go down to defeat. These were Hon. Obed P. Goucher, Minister of Agriculture, who lost to J. D. McKenna in Annapolis; Hon. John Doull, Attorney-General, defeated in Pictou; Hon. F. Fred Fraser, Provincial Secretary-Treasurer, who lost to Geoffrey Stevens in Halifax East; Hon. Dr. G. H. Murphy, Minister of Health, whose conqueror in Halifax South was Angus L. Macdonald, leader of the Liberals; and Hon. Albert Parsons, Minister without portfolio. Mr. Parsons bowed to A. S. Macmillan, former Liberal House leader, in Hants.

Premier Gordon S. Harrington had a scant majority in Cape Breton South, and with him, Hon. Joseph McDonald, Minister without portfolio, and Hon. Percy Black, Minister of Highways, were returned to the House. Mr. Macdonald defeated the Liberal candidate in Cape Breton North and was elected in a split vote in the two-member constituency of Cumberland.

EARLY DEFEAT INDICATED
Indication of the Government's defeat came in early returns, as Halifax constituencies piled up impressive totals for the Liberals. In the five city constituencies the Government failed to return a member. In 1928, when the Government won twenty-three seats to twenty for the Opposition, Halifax gave the Conservatives two men.

In 1930 a redistribution measure was passed, reducing the number of seats to thirty-eight. But only thirty-six members sat in the last Assembly. The stand-Continued on Page 5, Column 7

WILL DEVELOP CARIBOO GROUP

Local Company Takes Over Extensive Area Near Lightning Creek

Working quietly and systematically, a Victoria group of business men, organized as the Canada Lode Gold Mines, Ltd., in addition to other extensive holdings, have acquired one of the largest and most promising collections of mineralized ground in the rich Lightning Creek section of Cariboo.

Headed by W. F. Pinfold, the syndicate, which has been recently incorporated, includes such other well-known business men as James, Aaron and Mark Parfitt, Col. Don B. Martin, Ernest W. Ismay, John V. Johnson, W. W. Macdonald, Walter Clubb and Thomas S. McPherson. D. S. Tait is secretary and solicitor, while J. A. Proff has done much of the actual field work for the group.

LARGE HOLDINGS
The Cariboo holdings of the Canada Lode Gold Mines, Ltd., comprise an almost solid group of ninety-six claims, covering approximately 5,000 acres. These claims are situated on the north side of Lightning Creek and reach to the summit of the ridge marked by Mount Nelson, Eagle Nest Mountain and Dragon Mountain, and extends from the headwaters of Davis Creek to those of Dragon Creek on the other side of the divide. The extensive proposition was registered.

Port Alberni Has Another Scorch

PORT ALBERNI, Aug. 22.—Port Alberni sweltered today as a hot north breeze drifted over the city. Government records show that the instruments registered 98 degrees in the shade late this afternoon. A week ago today 103 degrees, a city record, was registered.

FIVE CANADIANS DEAD IN INDIANA

Three Women and Two Children, on Vacation Trip, Killed Collision

CHESTERSTON, Ind., Aug. 22 (AP).—Five Canadians—three women and two children—homeward bound today when their automobile was demolished by a speeding New York Central mail train. The victims were identified as Mrs. Catharine Mary Masson and her two children, of Ponoka, Alberta. Mrs. Masson's sisters, Miss Madeline Macdonald, of Edmonton, Alberta, and Miss Christine Macdonald, of Winnipeg, Alberta, were also on the train.

The train was traveling at a high speed when it struck the automobile, which was crossing the tracks. The car was crushed and the victims were killed instantly.

Damage in Millions as Thousands Fighting Fire

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 22 (AP).—Great forest fires spread over the Oregon coast country tonight, causing devastation estimated in the millions.

As clouds of smoke screened large areas, preventing accurate estimates of destruction, the extensive Blinn logging operations in the Siskiyou Valley faced virtual extermination. Nearly 2,000 men battled the Wilson River fire, described by state foresters as the worst in Oregon's history. Several hundred others attempted to control three incendiary fires as the flames raced into the mountains, borne along by a gale.

High winds carried a spot fire several miles towards the coast, taking it to within eighteen miles of the city of Tillamook. Forest rangers feared the entire Coast Range between Forest Grove and Tillamook would be afire soon. Much wild life perished before the state foresters as the wind-swept flames

Walnut Growing Recommended as Local Industry

Dr. Frank T. Shutt, of Ottawa, Dominion Chemist and Assistant Director of Experimental Farms, Gives Summary of Observations in Saanich Peninsula

THE arboreal aspect of the Saanich Peninsula may be entirely changed within the next fifteen or twenty years, and many acres of walnut trees may supplement the apple, pear and cherry orchards of the district, if the suggestion of Dr. Frank T. Shutt, Dominion chemist and assistant director of experimental farms, is followed up by farmers of the community.

Dr. Shutt, who has been here for the past two or three weeks visiting Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the Dominion Agricultural Experiment Station, and his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ford, Elk Lake, made quite an expert examination of conditions in the peninsula during a number of drives he took during his stay here. Before he left here last evening for Vancouver, en route for his home in Ottawa, he told The Colonist something about his impressions.

On the whole these were entirely optimistic in respect of certain farming enterprises that are being developed in the Saanich Peninsula. The growing of flower-seeds has, he thinks, a very definite future. The same is true of strawberries, cherries and logans. Personally he would like to see some more in the direction of the experiment of walnut-growing on the island, with a view particularly to the establishing of the walnut-pickle industry.

IMPORTATION COSTLY
"The pickled walnut is now purchased at high cost from England. In this part of the country especially, where there are so many English people with a taste for pickled walnuts already cultivated, the growing of this fruit should be commercially profitable if properly handled by someone who understands the business," he stated.

With E. M. Straight, director, and Dr. William Newton, he, several times, visited the Dominion Experimental Farm at Sidney (one of twenty-nine such farms in the Dominion), and various farms in the peninsula, reviewing with them the results of various experiments on which they are engaged, and also investigating the commercial value of the small-fruit crops favored in the district.

THREE ESSENTIALS
"In growing fruit, three things must be considered, in fact, cannot be neglected—adaptability of the soil, suitability of the season, and the state of the market. Fruit may be grown easily and well, but if transportation to the market is difficult, it changes the whole aspect of its commercial value," Dr. Shutt commented, when referring to the importance of the loganberry.

Desert Town Is Visited by Rain of Fish

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 22 (AP).—Maybe some persons said it "rained cats and dogs" here last night, when an inch and a half of rain fell in forty minutes. But it didn't rain fish.

The fish "rained" down at Tucson pumping station No. 1, and for W. Ronchey says he saw the phenomenon. Further, enough fish—they were about two inches long—to fill two or three small jars, were gathered up and have been turned over to the University of Arizona for study, and possible identification.

The area surrounding the pumping station is dry desert—no pools, ponds, lakes or streams.

ASSEMBLING MACHINE

The "Co-Motional Motion" machine, for which it is claimed two units of energy will be delivered to every one put in, is said to be housed in the Seattle workshop of the inventor, and at present to be in a state of assembly, though an actual test is promised Canadian investors this fall. A model has also been shown.

As was done in France, where an inventor believed he had discovered the secret of transmuting base metals into gold, the British Columbia authorities, who are now in possession of the machine, are said to be settling the value of the claims made for the device.

The voluntary subscription form submitted to the authorities as part of the machine was accepted by the inventor as valid and as follows:

$100,000 CONVEYANCE
"We, the undersigned, in consideration of the mutual promises hereinafter set forth, agree to pay to Peter Ivanoff the respective amount hereinafter set forth—the sum to be paid at the time of the subscription. The said Peter Ivanoff agrees to use for the labor and material for the completion of his machine now under construction at 420 West Canal and Sixth Avenue Northwest, Seattle, for demonstration purposes. This in consideration of the payment of said sum the said Peter Ivanoff agrees upon the completion of said machine to incorporate in a company, divided into one million shares, non-assessable, and to assign, set over, transfer and convey to the corporation to be formed, as aforesaid, all his rights, title and interest in and to the invention of Co-Motional Motion-Power, for which a patent has been granted in the United States, and in all other countries where patents are granted, together with all improvements or changes made in said invention by the said Peter Ivanoff. The said corporation to manufacture said Co-Motional machine, or to sell the right to manufacture the same on a royalty basis. The said Peter Ivanoff agrees to deliver to each shareholder one share of the capital stock of said corporation for each hundred dollars ($100) paid. In actual practice, the Province has been informed, one share of the capital stock was to be pledged for each $25 subscribed, in view of these hard times.

NOT INCORPORATED
Mr. Ivanoff's invention first came to the attention of the British Columbia authorities through the Registry of Joint-Stock Companies. The inventor called on the authorities, who were impressed with his sincerity, but as it was apparent that no corporation had been formed in British Columbia, there was nothing to review there.

There followed a quarter-page advertisement in two of the three Vancouver newspapers, which set out the inventor's business address as 328 Republic Building, Seattle, and named nine voluntary helpers from whom it was said, information would be obtained. W. P. H. R. M. D. 4, Gordon Road, Seattle, as the Victoria representative, and eight others for Vancouver, as follows: Chris Barker, 2134 Semlin Drive; Dr. F. Caruth, 1000 Block, Dunsmuir Street; G. PROFESSOR HAS HIGH PRAISE FOR CANADA'S SYSTEM OF BANKING

To keep it in repair. Roasted grain had become a substitute for tea and coffee in many homes.

A WARNING NOTE
A warning note was struck by Dr. Swanson. After remarking that on the Prairies an appreciable body of opinion existed which advocates complete reconstruction of the economic order, he asserted "there is great danger in blind experimentation which may plunge a nation into misery." He was of the opinion that the West had been given crops in recent years, farmers would have been able to carry on. But the calamity of drought combined with low prices had precipitated a serious situation.

"We are told the banks are lending too little and interest rates are too high," he said. "If banks are charging 9, 10 and 11 per cent they are charging too much, and it should be remedied." But Dr. Swanson doubted if interest rates could be dealt with successfully by legislation.

OPPOSES CENTRAL BANK
From George Bickerton, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Branch of the United Farmers of Canada, came a demand for the establishment of "a socialized system of banking, currency, credit and insurance. He was of the opinion that the central bank of issue and redemption on the ground it would function for private gain and would tend to further enslave our people."

Another professor at the University of Saskatchewan cited increased prices and debt reaction as the basic needs of the farmer. He said under present conditions, some public credit was necessary to enable the Saskatchewan farmer to carry on until such time as his root problems were dealt with.

AT REGINA NEXT
Tonight the commission left for Regina, where tomorrow it will hold sittings. It is said people are to conclude at Regina tomorrow evening, Winnipeg sittings will open on Thursday morning. If not they will go over until Friday.

PROFESSOR IS NO BELIEVER IN LAW TO AID RECOVERY

Professor Gregory pointed out passing of the N.R.A. came at the same time as did the successful stoppage of hoarding. When hoarding stopped, he said, purchasing power was increased and industrial activity was speeded up. But, he said, advantages accruing from stoppage of hoarding could not be attributed to the N.R.A.

SINCERITY UNDOUBTED
Who could doubt, he asked, the sincerity of President Roosevelt? Sincere as he was, however, the net result of the N.R.A. could play no part in the long run of United States recovery.

Narrowing of the margin of profits in industry, he said, only meant the nation would be living on its capital. A nation could do this for a short time successfully. But it did not mean it could do so in the long run, and from this point of view, there was no doubt the N.R.A. was bound to fail.

OPINIONS DIVIDED
Dr. H. G. Moulton and Dr. L. I. Lowwin, of the Brookings Institution, Washington, took exception to Professor Gregory's argument, while Sir Andrew MacFadyen supported it.

Company Promoter (trying to raise capital for a new scheme)—But my dear sir, it will make enormous profits later. Just now it's only in its infancy.

Financier—Maybe—but I'm not in mining.

Professor Gregory pointed out passing of the N.R.A. came at the same time as did the successful stoppage of hoarding. When hoarding stopped, he said, purchasing power was increased and industrial activity was speeded up. But, he said, advantages accruing from stoppage of hoarding could not be attributed to the N.R.A.

SINCERITY UNDOUBTED
Who could doubt, he asked, the sincerity of President Roosevelt? Sincere as he was, however, the net result of the N.R.A. could play no part in the long run of United States recovery.

Narrowing of the margin of profits in industry, he said, only meant the nation would be living on its capital. A nation could do this for a short time successfully. But it did not mean it could do so in the long run, and from this point of view, there was no doubt the N.R.A. was bound to fail.

OPINIONS DIVIDED
Dr. H. G. Moulton and Dr. L. I. Lowwin, of the Brookings Institution, Washington, took exception to Professor Gregory's argument, while Sir Andrew MacFadyen supported it.

Company Promoter (trying to raise capital for a new scheme)—But my dear sir, it will make enormous profits later. Just now it's only in its infancy.

LIBERALS NAME TWO CANDIDATES

J. G. Turgeon and Manford McGeer Nominated for East Vancouver Seats

VANCOUVER, Aug. 22 (CP).—Liberals of the provincial riding of East Vancouver tonight nominated J. G. Turgeon and Manford McGeer as their candidates in the coming elections.

Eight persons were proposed, two of whom withdrew. Four ballots were necessary.

Mr. Turgeon is a former Liberal organizer in British Columbia. He sat as member for Ribstone in the Alberta Legislature from 1913 to 1921 before coming to Vancouver. He is engaged in the financial business.

Mr. McGeer is a younger brother of G. G. McGeer, K.C. For a number of years he has been mill boss for Timberlands Limited.

SERIOUS WARFARE ON AUSTRIO-GERMAN BORDER IS FEARED

It was learned on high authority that Austria is considering adding Austria by lifting tariff restrictions and Italy may take similar action.

Vienna reports this week said broadcasting stations in South Germany are continuing attacks on the Douffus regime despite protests by Austria.

NO AGREEMENT IN EFFECT
ROME, Aug. 22 (AP).—Existence of any agreement among Great Britain, France and Italy to back the economic rehabilitation of Austria was denied semi-officially today but it was pointed out Premier Mussolini often has stressed the need of helping Austria economically.

Mussolini's views were known to be based on his opposition to any possible union of Austria and Germany and his desire to prevent a Nazi revolution in Austria. It was rumored Italy will grant Austria preferential freight rates through the free port of Trieste.

Kangaroo Jumps Into Moving Car

SYDNEY, New South Wales (AP).—When a motorist was returning home from Rapid Creek to Darwin, North Australia, at night, a large kangaroo, attempting to cross the road, was dazed by the headlights. It jumped on the shoulders of the driver, and then into the back seat of the car, escaping through the back window. The animal smashed the rear window, and the driver was scratched by its claws.

FIRES UNDER CONTROL IN NELSON DISTRICT

NELSON, Aug. 22 (CP).—Forest fires in this district, including that at Yale, were under control today following a heavy rain. A herd of 300 cattle, which was endangered, has been removed to safety. A number of buildings at Road Camp No. 3 were destroyed.

SPEEDBOAT PILOT LOSES INJURED LEG

CHILLIWACK, Aug. 22 (CP).—Career of one of the Northwest's crack speedboat pilots was probably ended today when E. W. Donogh, of Seattle, had his left leg amputated at the knee in hospital here.

Donogh was injured in the first heat of the Class E runabouts during the Pacific Northwest Outboard Association's regatta at Harrison Lake Saturday afternoon.

Wallace, aged sixty-one, editor and publisher of The Cooshocton Tribune, missing since early last night, was found in the Muskingum River, south of here, tonight.

The legs were bound together at the ankles with wire. Only contents of the pockets were the publisher's watch and the case containing his spectacles. Associates at The Tribune said he had left his bill-fold and other valuables in his desk.

Poisonous Reptiles Add to Excitement Of Indian Motorist

Sees Them on the Road and Treads on Them When Taking Bath on Shore of Bay of Bengal

BEZWADA, South India.—Traffic on Indian roads stops abruptly when, with tropical suddenness, night pulls her velvet shroud to blot out the blazing sun.

Ox carts, of which there are millions plodding the plains, stop in their tracks while drivers, who have dozed through most of the day, unloose their green-eyed beasts and turn them loose. Then with the usual hope that neither tigers, snakes nor black panthers will mow them down, they roll under the carts, which are left in the middle of the road, and sleep until dawn.

Groggy old men close and lock ponderous teakwood gates over level crossings. Flashed wipers quell their posts beside flooded rivers, and shepherds make no effort to keep their black herds off the road.

If you can see a black goat or black water buffalo in the black of an Indian night you must have the piercing eyes of a vampire bat. Food and gas depots, scarcer than milk-white Hindis at any time, are silent and empty by dark. The only thing to do is pull under a banyan and sleep.

ROAD HAZARDS

Now, on the second day of our plunge through the plains, night caught us miles from shelter out in the pink pampas. We had trundled out of Madras six hours late, six hours in which the Bennett became buggy was practically disassembled and rebuilt. Roads were lined with ox bundles. A bumpy is a runt size covered wagon on which the driver is generally in a state of collapse. They clutter up the road long, twisty cars. The front car used weary old pace-setting bulls, whose only claim to leadership is that they keep out of ditches and don't get into sight of a cow. The ones at back, distrustful of anything on wheels, usually rear up and plunge at sight of a car. Since a Hindu bull is roped to his bit, traces or other gear, it is mad plunge can take him anywhere from my lap to a monkey-filled tree.

During the day we saw them jump ditches, run away, knock down walls, leap into the carts themselves and once nearly smash us up. That was when a cart filled with timbers swept alongside and the timbers swung right inside the car.

Now, after dark, the eyes of these bulls gleamed a cold ghostly green in our headlights. We stirred up hawks, who laughed on a lay laugh, and fin-backed lizards, who ran madly away at sight of the lights, then generally started to double back in time to be run into by a rolling through one village we met a band madly clashing and smashing brass cymbals while a few stalwarts in the centre carried the gaunt form of a dead woman to the burning ghāt. Three times we had to get out and pound furiously at the door of railway gatesmen to get the gates opened. Then, rolling along a smooth stretch of road, we stirred up some small animal which dashed madly along in front of us.

NAILING THE VIPER

While watching this Bennett yelped, "Boy, look at that viper; whoa, whoa!" None of the rest of us saw anything, but Bennett started to back up now and I swung a flashlight beam down the road. There, coming for us like a bat out of hell, was a viper, brown and speedy.

"Got a pistol?" Bennett asked. "No." "Got a club?" "No, not a thing." "Okay; stand by and I'll run over him."

He backed down the road until the headlights picked out the writhing serpent—then came for him. The snake, with unbelievable twists, made for the ditch. While I kept the beam on him Bennett went into the ditch, too. The snake coiled and lashed out fiercely. Thin trickles of poison dribbled down the front tire.

In the midst of this Mrs. Bennett, who must have been asleep, demanded, "What on earth are you fellows doing? Hunting snakes?" "Snakes? You must be crazy. What snakes? Where?" Bennett pointed out on the running board and pointed right over the pouncing killer. "There, see him? Isn't he a beauty?" "You fellows must be drinking. I don't see a thing. Show it to me."

MAKES ESCAPE

She abruptly took the flashlight in her hand and climbed out. The snake obligingly hissed, faced around and recoiled for further battle. Then while Mrs. Bennett shouted orders and kept the snake in the flashlight beam the missionary tried two or three times to run over the thing, but missed every time. Meantime I was hunting up and down for a club and the Bennett, butler was keeping discreetly inside the car. I found no club and Bennett still missed with his wheels, so the serpent got away.

We rolled on further and came to the bungalow of a man with the honest name of Boggs. Mr. Boggs gave us food and a place to sleep. While we were eating we could hear the surf pounding along the Bay of Bengal and planned a morning swim.

We were up with the crows and rolled through sand dunes to a small river. What might have been a casual little dip in the sea at this stage became a deep sea expedition. First off we started with a car cranker and a guide. Then, at the river, we had to park a guard over

Newspaper Office in Havana Sacked

THINKING The Herald of Cuba was a Government organ, when it actually was not, exulting mobs sacked the offices soon after news had spread that Machado was "on leave of absence." Here is a scene taken shortly after the crowd had destroyed most of the office furniture and thrown it into the street.

The machine. Then an old man and a boy took us across the river and up among dunes where women were making crimson dye to the sea. Great breakers were roaring up on the sands and when we'd plunged in once we knew death lay waiting for us right there because the undertow was terrific.

We didn't do much swimming; just paddled about. While standing knee deep in frothy billows I felt something wiggle under my feet. Instantly it stopped. When that wave retreated again I was standing right on the middle of a grey sea snake. More dead than cobra or adder, it was coiled square on this chap and he was wiggling frantically to get loose. I jumped and the snake plunged forward and buried in the sand. He made no effort to bite. Bennett, still a bloodthirsty snake hunter, took the bell off his jeans and waited a chance to snap at the brute, whip fashion. The snake came up several more times, but we never got him.

INTO THE CRIME BELT

All that day we rolled further and further north into the gipsy and crime belt. Gipsy women, decked out in enough brass for a Bulgarian colonel, clinked arrows and past us. When we came to the Kistina, one of India's seven sacred rivers, it was in mud, boiling flood. There were neither power boats nor bridges. To drive was suicide. To wait for the river to go down meant starvation. The thing to do was flag a freight train which, about us, kept a spare car on the rear, get ourselves hoisted into that car and cross that way. But freighters don't run very often down here in the crime belt. When they do they don't stop for marooned motorists. So Bennett telephoned the road boss on the far side. Sure, he had a barge to spare a couple of hours. We waited in the shade of the railway bridge, while coolie women came down to the flooded river to bathe themselves with modest caution and their clothes with reckless stone slapping abandon. Imagine how long a shirt lasts when they use sand for soap, boulders for a washboard!

In less than two hours a grey

City Bonds Rise On Open Market; Inquiries Brisk

WHEN the city's last over-the-counter issue rose on the open market to $109 for a $100 bond, inquiries for the present over-the-counter issue increased at the City Hall yesterday, with the result that $2,000 more $100 bonds were picked up.

It is the small investor that has been showing his confidence in the city's financial position, and by doing so has obtained an investment yielding 5.5 per cent instead of the usual 2.5 per cent interest.

Applications and sales to date for the city's refunding issue amount to $34,100.

PERFECTLY CALM

This, for me, was hop-off spot on a long swing through non-British India into Baluchistan.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

FORCING WITH A THREE-CARD SUIT

A question that has proved very difficult to many bridge players is what they should do when partner has opened the bidding in a suit for which they hold magnificent support and the honor strength sufficient for a forcing takeout, but no suit of length, sufficient to justify the use of the strong attacking weapon. The solution, however, to this, as to other problems at the bridge table, is not difficult provided the responding hand holds a three-card or even shorter suit headed by the ace and strength sufficient to justify the force. Then this unbidable suit may be used to force partner to continue the bidding until at least a game, and possibly a slam, is reached.

Mr. C. M. Mainwaring, of Duquesne, Pa., recently submitted to me the North and South hands below and asked me to criticize the bidding:

South dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

South: ♠ Q J 3
♥ K Q
♦ A Q 9 8 6
♣ A K 4

North: ♠ N
♦ W
♣ S

South: ♠ A 10 9 8
♥ A 10 8
♦ K J 10 7 5
♣ 10

The actual bidding:
South West North East
1♠ Pass 2NT Pass
3NT Pass 4NT Pass
5NT Pass 6NT Pass

The correct bidding of this hand is: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
1♠ Pass 3♠(1) Pass
3NT(3) Pass 4NT(3) Pass
5NT(4) Pass 7♠(5) Pass
Pass Pass

1—A forcing takeout in a three-card suit. The hand contains five honor-tricks and, after the opening bid of a diamond, it is, of course, North's intention to play the hand certainly for game and probably for at least a small slam.

2—A denial that the opening bid was based on any substantial margin above the minimum.

3—The conventional use of the four-five no trump convention, showing two aces and the king of a bid suit—in this case the club king.

4—Naturally South gives the conventional response, which shows the possession of the remaining aces. While somewhat worried about the lack of a fit, he must respond to his partner's conventional slam forcing bid in the conventional manner.

5—It is obvious that the success of the contract depends upon either a favorable lead or a simple finesse in spades. The grand slam should be bid.

TOMORROW'S HAND

What should West's opening bid, not vulnerable, be with the hand below?

West dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

South: ♠ A 2
♥ K 4
♦ 8 6 4
♣ 8 6 4

North: ♠ A Q 10 9

♦ A K Q
♣ 10 9

South: ♠ A K 10 9 4 3
♥ J
♦ K Q J 7 5
♣ K Q J 7 5

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

WOULD EXTEND DEBTOR RELIEF

Moratorium Arguments to Be Advanced Before Province Once More

According to a Canadian Press dispatch from North Vancouver, a body of Mainland ratepayers are coming to Victoria to ask the Government to proclaim a moratorium on interest and principal of agreements for sale, mortgages and delinquent taxes, and may arrive here today or tomorrow to put their claims before the Province.

The delegation arose from a ratepayers' meeting at Lynn Valley Municipal Hall, and is said to include R. E. Bray, Mrs. A. L. Powan, George H. Hardy, A. E. Munro, M.P., W. H. Morison, George McAlister and A. Francis.

At the last session of the Legislature, the Government heard arguments for and against changes in the existing moratorium law, on which it also took the advice of members of the Judiciary.

ACT AMENDED

As a result of the discussions in the House at that time, the Government amended the law in minor particulars, but declined to sponsor a stay of interest payments in civil contracts. In taxation relief, it granted municipalities considerable powers to withhold forfeiture of tax arrears property, as part of the Municipal Act, and not in the moratorium law itself.

It is doubtful, under the circumstances, whether the Province will accede to any request to reopen the subject now, or that even if it were willing to do so, could anything be done before the next session of the Legislature. This is the reply, at all events, said to have been made by responsible officials of the Government to the organization requesting an audience.

The delegation is said to have persisted in its appeal for an audience, and may arrive in the city today or Thursday.

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If August 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., from 4:45 to 5:30 p.m., and 8:40 to 9:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 to 8:30 a.m., from 2 to 3 p.m. and from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Influences operating on this date will probably not tend to bring out the finest that is in people. People generally will be brusque in their attitudes towards others, they will speak and act inconsiderately and will not be quick to sense the wants and likes of others. Children will not be the worst offenders.

The child born on this August 23 will quite possibly be a difficult little one to understand. There will be times when he is friendly, considerate and desirous of helping others, and again, he will be distant and aloof, apparently malicious and inclined to treat a wrench into the plans of others. He will have to be taught the value of constant kindness towards his fellow man.

If August 23 is the date of your birth, the chances are that you are one who has a very material outlook on life. You take great pride in the worldly goods that you are able to acquire, and if your stock of such things is large, you are inclined to be boastful and a bit puffed up about your good fortune.

PRESBYTERY TO CONVENE

Annual Meeting of United Church to Take Place at Nanaimo Next Month

REV. E. F. CHURCH

The Autumn meeting of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church will be held at St. Andrew's Church, Nanaimo, on Monday and Tuesday, September 18 and 19. It was announced yesterday by Rev. Thomas Keyworth, secretary of the Presbytery. The sessions will be under the presidency of Rev. E. F. Church, of Victoria.

The Monday session, which will commence at 2 p.m., will be devoted to the election of officers and a public meeting. The latter will be addressed by Rev. R. C. Scott, captain of the Ms. Sky Pilot, of the United Church Marine Mission, and Rev. George Wilson, superintendent of the Home Missions of British Columbia.

WILL CONSIDER REPORTS

The Tuesday business will take the form of consideration of the home mission work of the Presbytery and the missionary and maintenance fund of the church, as well as reports from committees on evangelism and social service and foreign missions.

A new subject will be up for discussion following the presentation of the report. This will be the Christian League for Social Action, a new organization which was launched at the last meeting of the British Columbia Conference held in May at New Westminster.

This league aims to promote the carrying out of the principles of Jesus in social and economic affairs. The sessions at Nanaimo will be closed with the service of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at 4 p.m. and an address by Rev. E. J. Thompson.

After hours at the hairdresser, it was still the natural beauty of her teeth that called forth the highest admiration. She had never given them any particular care. Until one day she noticed a touch of "pink" on her tooth brush. This warned her that her gums were becoming tender—her sound, white teeth might be in danger. Soft foods had robbed her gums of exercise. Gingivitis, Vincent's disease, even pyorrhea, threatened. So, she did as her dentist told her—started with Ipana and massage. After brushing the teeth with Ipana she rubs a little extra Ipana into the gums. Zaratol, the toning agent in Ipana, tones and stimulates the gums. She does this daily and so has lovely teeth set in sound gums, and never a fear of "pink tooth brush."

A LIBERAL VICTORY

The turnover in Nova Scotia may well be assigned, like the defeat of many another Government, to the restlessness of the people politically, a restlessness that is always induced by any period of depression. Whenever economic conditions are not good, a majority of the people set out to find a scapegoat. That has been the case in Nova Scotia. The Government came under fire because of the manner in which unemployment relief was disbursed. Similarly, it was criticized because of the nature of the public works it carried out to meet emergency conditions. It was condemned, as well, for not instituting sufficient economies. These are all matters very much in the limelight in these days.

The Harrington Government was on the defensive almost from the time of its entry into the campaign. That attitude is tantamount to courting defeat, and it met with heavy defeat at the polls. Conservation lasting in office for just about eight years in Nova Scotia, for two terms, in other words, after the Liberals had terms ranging over forty-three years. The Liberals, under Mr. Angus L. Macdonald, will now have to cope with the conditions of which they complained so roundly. They will be helped, however, by the fact that the era of depression is on the wane and more normal conditions are being restored.

THE REVOLT IN CUBA

General Machado is a political victim of the world-wide depression. For Cuba that depression started just about the time he assumed power. It was in 1925 that the price of sugar fell so disastrously, and it is upon the marketing of its sugar crop that Cuba mainly depends for prosperity. Cuba experienced the beginning of the depression four or five years before it was felt in other countries. General Machado borrowed money to meet the situation. He inaugurated a vast system of public works. For a few years it was possible to look after unemployment through the medium of a dole on a lavish scale. Once borrowing for this purpose was inaugurated it became necessary to keep on borrowing. Meantime the price of sugar continued on the downward path. Production did not pay.

Resentment against President Machado evidenced itself in fits and starts. Criticism of the manner of the dispensation of unemployment relief grew in volume. Something in the nature of a dictatorship was established. Newspapers criticizing the Government were suppressed. Public meetings of protest against the trend of affairs were banned. Every effort was made to stifle the opposition, but, even underground, it grew more intense. The students of the University of Havana were leaders in this opposition and on one occasion went on strike supported by their professors. In 1931 there was armed revolt against the Machado regime but it was quickly quelled. Victory in this particular made General Machado more obstinate than ever before. He engaged in further repressive measures. He brought into play the full rigors of martial law. The actual revolution which proved successful saw its inception in a general strike which paralyzed business in Havana. Then the army turned against the President. That was the end of the regime of General Machado. There is still a lot of trouble in Cuba and it will likely be many months before anything in the nature of a stable government is established.

RECIPROCITY NOT AN ISSUE

President Roosevelt of the United States is engaged on a policy of economic nationalism which has no reference to trade with other countries. At the same time Mr. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader in this country, has been touring the West urging the negotiation of a reciprocity pact with the United States. The Washington Administration has shelved reciprocity indefinitely while Mr. King is descending on its virtues as if it were a live political issue.

The paradox of American policy at the present time is that Mr. Roosevelt is not carrying out some of the pre-election policies of his party. He was committed during the campaign to tariff revision downwards. Nothing has been done in this direction. Instead, all efforts have been concentrated on internal recovery by internal means alone. Reciprocity with Canada has no place within the meaning of the National Recovery Act. In other words, Mr. Mackenzie King is floundering a dead horse. All the implications of the National Recovery Act support the maintenance of the tariffs of the United States as protective measures. Mr. Roosevelt has thrown a considerable portion of his election platform overboard. As to reciprocity with Canada it is out of the question of negotiation unless economic nationalism in the United States proves a failure. Thus there is a certain measure of fallacy in the political campaign in which Mr. Mackenzie King has been engaged on the Prairies.

PARLIAMENTARY LOQUACITY

An analysis of the British House of Commons covering speeches made from November 27, 1932 to July 26, 1933 gives an illuminating illustration of those who hold the loquacity record. At the head of the list stands Mr. George Lansbury, the British Labor leader, who has been responsible for 246 columns of a space second with 229 columns and third on the list is Sir Stafford Cripps, also a Labor member, with 217 columns. Then comes Sir Herbert Samuel with 191 columns, and then another Labor member, Mr. Tom Williams, with 183 columns. Sixth place is held by Mr. Winston Churchill but he has only 122 columns, or less than half of the leading Labor member. The most loquacious of the Ministers of the Crown is Sir Archibald Sinclair, the Secretary for Scotland, who is responsible for 120 columns, and then comes another Labor member, Mr. James Mackintosh, with 115 columns. Mr. L. S. Amery, an ex-Unionist Minister, spoke 97 columns in the period under review. Sir Robert Horne, 86 columns and Sir Austen Chamberlain, 56 columns. Thus, in the record of the first eleven most loquacious Members of the British House of Commons, only one Cabinet Minister is listed.

A similar compilation of loquacity in this country would undoubtedly show Mr. James S. Woodsworth and Mr. Mackenzie King as facile principals, with Mr. Ian Mackenzie probably leading the balance of the Members of the House of Commons. It is a strange commentary on parliamentary practice that those possessed of the largest fund of information about political happenings usually speak least. Moreover, it is criticism of the destructive, not the constructive type, that is mainly responsible for raising the costs of legislative sessions. The critics who are the worst offenders believe that a cascade of words is the quid pro quo they must give for their parliamentary indemnities, though the probability is that they are less worried about this than they are flattered by the sound of their own voices.

STAMPING OUT GUNMEN

It is only the odd gunman who crops up in Britain and yet that odd one has been the incentive for a new measure in Parliament to deal with those of his ilk. There are drastic penalties to be imposed on this form of crime. One of these is fourteen years penal servitude for using, or even for trying to use, a firearm in resisting lawful arrest. There is a penalty of seven years provided for carrying a gun, whether imitation or real. It is true that toy pistols and revolvers of that type are not brought within the category of prohibited weapons but the matter is being considered. Some of that class of "toys," imported from Germany, can be turned into deadly weapons by slight alterations.

The intention in Britain is to make it impossible for the gunmen to ply their trade. They have never got a footing in the country. The only way to deal with them is to make it as difficult as possible to obtain a lethal weapon, and in the cases where there is illegal possession, to impose a penalty that will fit the crime. If the United States would follow Britain's example in this respect it might get rid of the notoriety it has won of being the most crime-ridden country in the world.

Dr. Hutchings, president of the University of Chicago, says that "parents whose children have neither character nor intellectual interest should keep them at home or send them to another kind of institution." What a saving in public expenditure could be effected if this advice were followed. There are too many parents who believe that a university can develop character, make intelligent beings and produce the morally fit. All these developments should have been reached at the age when a university course begins. If they are not the likelihood is that the university will not help.

Railway earnings and bank clearings are usually regarded as jointly and severally providing an economic barometer. In both respects there have been satisfactory increases during recent weeks. That is a significant sign of a return to more normal conditions.

Dean Inge says that to mix religion and business is to spoil two good things. Spirituality and economics cannot be driven tandem.

ECONOMICS OF THE C.C.F.

The curious idea that we can find salvation in a self-contained country is rampant in the ranks of the C.C.F. in Western Canada. It is part of their larger belief in a wonderful new credit scheme which can only be operated in a country insulated, to the greatest extent possible, from the rest of the world. This strange belief colors the speeches of their leaders and finds frank expression in the columns of their press. The Socialist conception of the control of external trade by import and export boards is part of the same general scheme. Just how Western Canada, which sells its chief product, wheat, to over sixty countries, is going to be fitted into a plan of national self-sufficiency, with international trade held back by State action, is a minimum, has yet to be explained.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

And then we'll raise, on liberty's broad
A structure of wise government, and show
In its world a glorious spectacle
Of social order, freedom, justice and
By reason, award, self-governed, self-
And the electric chain of public good
Will round the private happiness of each.

We have never been up in the air—at least not in the physical sense of the term—and have no immediate intention of soaring "away up into the blue empyrean," although we have been told that the sensation is pleasantly exhilarating rather than unpleasantly terrifying, but have gathered from various reliable sources that one of the absolute essentials pertaining to aerial navigation is control. When a flying machine gets out of control, prepare for anything that may happen. So if you are thinking about going up in the air be sure of the capacity of your pilot—that is, if you have anything to say about the selection of the men at the controls.

There are differences of opinion about the daring economic experiment in process of development in the United States, but there are no differences of opinion as to the nature of that experiment. All authorities are agreed that the daring venture is revolutionary in its implications. Nor do there appear to be any differences of opinion as to the people of the United States as to the capacity of the man at the controls. If the country has gone up in the air in the economic sense of the term, there is a man at the controls in whom the masses of the people have the utmost confidence.

And while there may be a small minority of people in the United States and in the rest of the world who dread the possibility of a crash, there can be no question that the masses of the people hope for a safe landing and a long run along the prepared way to security and prosperity.

There are difficulties to be overcome of course. No one can predict the ultimate result of experiments which partake of the nature of revolutions. The business and the industrial interests of the United States are so various and tremendous that the problems of control must be difficult of solution except by master minds. We are told that the first economic object to be achieved is a general advance in the prices of agricultural products.

In the hey-day of the late boom no one paid any attention to the disparity in the values of the products of the farm compared with the values of the products of the factories and the rewards of "business." Here were inequalities which must be adjusted before there could be conditions of general prosperity. It was the control of the wheat and corn and cotton growers which directed the attention of the president to the necessity of a reform in "methods and a readjustment of the economic structure."

In the effort to ameliorate the condition of the agricultural interests the old-established theories of orthodox economic authorities that the least government had to do with business the better for all kinds of business received a nasty jar—what General Johnson called a "sock in the nose." The democratic dictatorship told the farmers to grow less wheat and the cotton growers to plant less cotton, and the Government would impose a tax on the consumers of such products as were produced in order to compensate them for their enforced sacrifices. This revolutionary movement gained impetus until it covered practically the whole industrial and business fabric of the country. The cotton code and the corn and wheat codes were followed by codes which regulated the prices of hours of labor and the profits of the owners of factories and shops and the conditions under which those institutions were to be conducted.

In connection with these there was a difficulty to be overcome. That obstruction was the large quantity of what the dealers and speculators call "carry-overs." As long as that surplus remained in the country there was always a possibility that it might be "dumped" to the confusion of fixed prices. We are told that that problem is to be solved by exporting the grain to some country at any price it will bring, and the losses charged against the taxpayers at large. But when the grain problem had been solved at least upon paper, another problem confronted the "controllers." That was the problem of bacon.

The bacon surplus was so large that the markets could not absorb it at prices which would bear a reasonable relation to the cost of production. Under the various codes are controller. The bacon controller is going to solve the bacon problem by developing a system of birth control in the too prolific pig families, of course with the connivance of the owners of the pigs and without reference to the views of the consumers who will have to pay dictated prices for their morning slices or rations of bacon. But when individuals offer up their independence as a sacrifice in order to assure the prosperity of the masses they must be prepared to pay the price. There is no doubt that in one respect the revolution has achieved its object. Prices have gone up and are going up. The problem that remains to be solved is that of synchronizing the rate of price increases with the rate of pay. The chief controller admits the serious nature of that problem. He admits that the producers have lost little time in advancing prices—little time that they have been so ready to take time by the forelock that they have got a "head" ahead of the wage code schedules. Still, it must be remembered that there cannot be revolutions without some dislocations.

CUBA UNSTABLE

SAYS F. SPENCER

Revolution Was Inevitable—Unrest Will Be Rife Until Class Distinctions Eliminated

A vivid description of the chaotic conditions existing in Cuba was brought back to Victoria by Fred Spencer, proprietor of the General Warehouse, on his return from a visit to Havana. In Mr. Spencer's opinion, there is no unrest in the southern country just as long as the present class distinction remains. The recent revolution was bound to come sooner or later, he said.

One of the most striking features of the country, declared Mr. Spencer, was the military rule and the large numbers of police and soldiers who maintained law and order in the land through sheer weight of numbers.

Havana, he said, was a city of extremes. In portions of the city there was fabulous wealth, while in others the people lived under the most appalling conditions, the dirty "hymns of hate" and a job. "You'll be spared from that," he said, "but the way lies, beside him, 'Yes—by all means—please—do not—' and then he said, 'What you did?'"

Emerald Isle Trip Popular As a Lecture

So popular was the "Trip to the Emerald Isle," given at First Baptist Church on Monday evening, that the accommodation of the women's parlor was filled to capacity long before the hour of the start, and it was found necessary to transfer the entertainment to the Sunday school room to accommodate the audience.

Rev. John Scott, who has been supplying the pulpit, took the audience on a delightful ramble through the land of his birth and childhood. His many slides revealed beautiful spots from North to South of Ireland, including fifteen views of Lake Killarney.

The slides were illustrated with suitable Irish songs, Mr. George Guy being in fine voice for his numbers. "Till Slieve M'har to Brit's Isle" and the "Meeting of the Waters" and "Commemora." Miss Howell sang with much charm "The Dear Little Shamrock." Mrs. Mary Macintosh rendered with feeling "By Killarney's Lakes and Fells" and "The Low-Back Car," while Mrs. Noel charmed the audience with "Where the River Shannon Flows" and "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls." Mr. Scott lending able support at the piano.

During the taking of the collection the audience sang "Tipperary." Mrs. Angus Galbraith presided and Mrs. C. H. Haverstock moved, and Mrs. Hamilton seconded, a hearty vote of appreciation to the lecturer, the artists, and Messrs. O'Brien and West for the enjoyable evening.

Little Bedtime Stories

Whitefoot, the Wood Mouse, Becomes Sympathetic

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Sympathetic is a long word, but I'm quite sure you know exactly what it means. It means to be sorry for another who is in pain or trouble. Whitefoot the Wood Mouse was sympathetic. He was so sympathetic that he was worried, and it was all on account of Buster Bear and his sore paw.

Now while Buster Bear is one of the biggest of all the little people of the Green Forest, Whitefoot the Wood Mouse is one of the smallest. Only Tiny Weeny the Shrew is smaller. So it seemed very funny for such a little bit of a fellow as Whitefoot to be worrying about such a great big fellow as Buster Bear. For some time Whitefoot had known that something was wrong. Of course it was impossible to be anywhere near Buster Bear and not know something was wrong. But just what it was Whitefoot didn't know.

Now you might think that Whitefoot would have been glad when he saw Buster Bear in trouble. You know Buster Bear has tried many, many times to catch Whitefoot. But Whitefoot didn't feel that way at all. In the first place, being so very small himself, he had the greatest admiration for Buster Bear because of his great size and strength. Buster Bear was a sort of hero to Whitefoot. You see Whitefoot used to dream about being like Buster Bear.

Whitefoot discovered that something was wrong with Buster quite by accident. He had climbed to the top of a tall stump in which was a little hollow where he had stored away some seeds. It was a stump in which he would not have cared to have Buster find him. He was so busy with those seeds that he forgot to keep his usual sharp watch. So he was more than startled when he heard a growling whine and peeped out to see Buster Bear headed that way. There wasn't time to seek safety elsewhere, so Whitefoot drew as far back as possible and with all his might hoped that Buster Bear wouldn't stop to examine that old stump.

Buster didn't stop. He went right past. Whitefoot peeped out. It was then he noticed that Buster was limping. He understood then, the whining note in Buster's voice. It was clear that Buster was very uncomfortable.

"I wonder," thought Whitefoot, "what ails Buster Bear? He must have hurt that paw he holds up so carefully. I don't see how he could have done it. I hope it will get well soon. I suppose it is silly of me to hope so when I know he would gobble me up if he had the chance. But I do just the same."

From that time on Whitefoot spent a great deal of time watching poor Buster Bear. He saw that Buster's paw was growing worse instead of better. He couldn't help but notice how cross and ugly Buster was becoming. Every day he grew Buster didn't stop. He went right past.

DRAWING THE LINE

Husband and wife were touring the shops in the West End of London. Presently they stopped outside a display of hats in a shop window. "There you are," he said, pointing to an attractive style, "buy yourself that hat. It'll suit you."

She shook her head. "But that style is not worn now," she replied. He pointed to another hat. "How about that one?" he asked. "No, everybody is wearing that kind," she returned.

Ocean Archery Attracts Mermaids

As a variation of archery and a means of developing skill in marksmanship, fair denizens of the beach at Long Beach, Cal., shoot arrows at a moving target propelled by an electric boat in the Marine Stadium at the beach city. The difficulty of hitting the bull's-eye is increased by the fact that they stand on bobbing speedboats while the target passes by.

At the Theatres

CAPITOL "Soldiers of the King," brings Cicely Courtneidge to the screen in a brilliant role, portraying a human story that is fraught with laughter, music and song. Life behind the footlights of London's famous theatres is revealed, showing the conflict between love and rigid tradition of the "boards." Edward Everett Horton heads the supporting cast.

PLAYHOUSE Marie Dressler, star of "Emma," currently playing at the Empire Theatre, claims she prefers dramatic roles to straight comedy parts—because she can put so much comedy into them. Paradoxically enough, this is really true of the work of this popular screen star. In "Emma" there are actually more comic moments than tragic despite the story's dramatic situations and stirring climax.

EMPIRE The 830-mile course of "The King's Cup," which forms the basis of Sir Alan Cobham's story running at the Empire until Thursday, is the most picturesque in the world, as it embraces all the famous coastal towns and resorts of England, and many remarkable sights of the big city's docks and shipping centres will be shown. There is a sensational scene of a wing-to-wing race down Southampton Water against the background of great Atlantic liners, with the machines leap-frogging over smaller craft.

COLUMBIA What nationality is THEATRE Nils Asther? The famous European actor, appearing with Robert Montgomery in "But the Flesh Is Weak," now at the Columbia Theatre, was raised in Sweden, and always called himself a Swede. But when papers were made out for the Government, that he might remain with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, it was found he was born in Denmark. Now Nils is not sure whether he's a Dane or not.

"BE MINE TONIGHT" HELD OVER IN CITY

"Be Mine Tonight," the great international musical production currently showing at the Dominion Theatre, will be held over for a further run of three days in Victoria. This announcement is in keeping with the amazing record of success that the picture has achieved in every city throughout Canada, for in every case the instant popularity with which it has been met has necessitated an extended run. The all-star cast is headed by Kiepara, famous tenor from the Vienna Opera House, who makes his debut on this side of the Atlantic in "Be Mine Tonight."

CALLING IT "SPOONERISM"

A reader inquires as to the origin of calling by the name of "Spoonerism," the "unintentional confusion of letters or parts of words in a sentence," "which sometimes occurs with nervous people."
"Kinkering Kongs Their Titles Take!" That was the title of a hymn. He was Dr. William A. Spooner, warden of New College, Oxford, England. And those who claim that Dr. Spooner was a much maligned man, most of the "Spoonerisms" charged to him having been invented by facetiously inclined associates, point to the above as the only authentic instance of one which he himself perpetrated. Some delightful examples of the practice which has been attributed to him are: "Three cheers for our queer old Dean" for "Three cheers for our dear old Dean." "Sir, you have lasted a whole worm" to a student who had "wasted a whole term." "Is the dean busy?" The doctor was said to have stated that he was "going from London to Oxford by the town drain" and that "It was kistomary to cuss the bride!"

Father's bedroom door opened in the middle of the night. He sat up in bed.

"Who's there?" he asked.
"Me, Dad," said a small voice.
"What is it, sonny?" asked the boy's father, mystified.
"I think there's a burglar downstairs, Dad," said the child fearfully. Father yawned sleepily.

"Toddle back to bed," he said.
"No charge—everything's free."

BOSTON BRAVES TAKE OVER SECOND POSITION

Perry and Wilde Win Initial Tilt In Doubles Meet

English Pair Scores Straight-Set Victory Over Americans in Opening of U.S. Tourney—Vines and Partner Advance

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 22 (AP).—A late sun broke through rain clouds at Longwood today and competitors in the United States doubles tournament took the courts, where the star entries, including the twelve American and foreign seeded pairs, slaughtered their opening opposition in short order.

All but one of the thirty-two pairs went into action, Jack Crawford and "Two-fisted" Vivian McGrath, Australians who top the foreign list, suffering their second day of idleness as a result of default of Thomas Flynne, of Bay-side, L.I., and John Ray, of Cambridge.

Defending champions, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, took a straight-set victory over the American pair of J. M. Farrin and Gerald W. Smith, navy team from Portsmouth, N.H., 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, and Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, 1931 U.S. champions, were defeated in the first round by the defending champions as they polished off Herbert and Edward Puller, of Salem, in straight sets.

KEN LAWSON RETAINS CITY JUNIOR GOLF TITLE

Shoots Fine Round Of 69 at Macaulay To Nose Out Field

Brilliant Sharpshooting Youngster From Uplands Club Turns in Thirty-Six-Hole Card of 139 to Win by Two Strokes—Rollie Ryley Finishes Second With 141

Netting a brilliant 69, to his first round card of 70, Ken Lawson, seventeen-year-old golfing expert from the Uplands Club, retained his Junior City Championship over the Macaulay Point course yesterday by turning in a thirty-six hole score of 139 to top the strong field by two strokes. Lawson came from behind to stage a sensational up-hill fight to capture his second straight crown, which makes his victory all the more impressive. Rollie Ryley, of Macaulay Point, finished in second place with a fine 141, while Harold Pretty, Uplands, the first day leader, annexed third place with 142.

Although he went over par on the out-going nine when he reached the turn in 36, Lawson played havoc with the "Old Man" on the incoming journey and blazed over the nine holes with a great 33, two under perfect figures. Lawson bagged two perfect figures on the out-going route, but three more on the last part of the route. He went over par at four holes and parred the rest.

HAS FINE 68

Lawson's card was not the best of the day at that, as Rollie Ryley came strolling in with a par-shattering score of 68. He went out in even par, which is 35, and then traveled over the last nine in 33, but failed by two strokes to catch the defending champion. Seven perfect figures on the out-going route, while two birdies and a flock of pars made up his last nine card.

The field played good golf and many of the youngsters will be tough to be beat in the forthcoming city championship, which will start at Uplands next Sunday. Lawson and Ryley were hitting their drives and second shots straight and far down the fairways, while their short game was almost perfect. Harold J. McVie Pretty, who scored a great 67 the opening round, fell to a 75 and took third position. His drives were good, but he found the putting surfaces somewhat hard to solve and over-putted several times.

Cards of 75 and 73 gave Eric Wright, Macaulay, fourth spot, while L. Roach, Uplands, and Pat Fletcher, tied with thirty-six hole totals of 150. The remainder of the contenders also turned in good cards, considering the fact that some of them are mere kids in the early teens.

C. PANGMAN IS PUTTING CHAMP

Charles Pangman crowned himself champion putter of the local Kiwanis Club yesterday when he won the competition staged at the club's luncheon yesterday at Victoria Golf Club. D. Spence was second. Harry Curry took the prize for gaining the most holes in one.

All members played round the green twice and the four lowest scores formed the finalists. These were: Pangman with a 38, Spence with 35, Vic King with 38 and Bill Hummerstone with 38. These four played off but the title-taker forged ahead early and was in no danger.

Stage All Set for Big Presentation To Lester Tonight

Full Programme for Big Send-Off to Hockey Mogul This Evening at Beacon Hill Is Announced—Record Attendance Expected

The stage is all set and everything is expected to be carried out without a hitch. That's the statement released last night by the committee in charge of the big presentation to Lester Patrick and his two sons, Lynn and Murray, this evening during the Gray Line-Victoria Police Department baseball fixture at Beacon Hill Park at 5:30 o'clock. All arrangements were completed yesterday by officials of the Rotary, Gyros, Kiwanis, Kiwanis and Sons of Canada, and one of the largest crowds in the history of local sport is expected to be at the hill for the big send-off.

Half an hour after the ball game gets under way, a plane sponsored by Tom Kelway, of Kelway's Cafe, will fly over the field and drop rubber balls. Sixty will fall from the sky, and the first twenty kids getting hold of them will receive autographed ice hockey pucks from Lester Patrick. At 6:30 o'clock, Mayor Leeming will call a halt to the game and will present the famous hockey mogul with a fitting presentation from the citizens on the eve of his departure from the city. Members of the City Council will also attend and will have special seating accommodation.

WRESTLING
The game will continue until 7:15, after which Lloyd Penlon and Manny Hopkins will wrestle for three rounds. After this, Taka Singh, the strong-man Hindu, will take the floor and will proceed to down a dozen raw eggs and swallow a pound of first class butter. Cant Singh "Rebel" Mowat will help Taka with his task. If the horse arrives on time, Taka will do another act on the horse's back with the aid of a ladder, with "Rebel" holding the ladder or the horse. Dr. Charlie, of hot-dog fame, will dish out the heated canine to the fans and kiddies, while a flock of candies will also be distributed to the youngsters.

My Theories on Golf

Smoothness in Golf Swing Advantageous—Ample Backswing Is Aid
By BOBBY JONES

One of the qualities most to be desired in a golf stroke is smoothness, and smoothness becomes impossible unless the backswing is allowed time for gradual acceleration. A backswing that is too short brings about the necessity of making a nervous, jittery stroke on or around the greens, let him look first to his backswing. The easiest way back to smoothness and confidence is to swing the club leisurely and amply.

and effort which can very easily destroy the rhythm of the stroke. Such a procedure is directly opposed to the motion of swinging the club-head.

Nowhere is the disastrous effect of a short backswing more easily noted than in the play on the shorter distances on reasonably flat greens. But those who putt in this way invariably have difficulty with the longer putts and on keen undulating greens where a delicate touch is of first importance. The man who takes a short, sharp rap at the ball will never be able to compete in these respects with the putter who swings the club.

WATCH SWING WHEN PUTTING
Almost always I am able to trace my putting troubles to an abbreviated or too-rapid backswing. Whenever I am swinging the club back smoothly and in a broad sweep without hurry, I am confident of putting well. When I am not doing so, I know I will putt badly. The shorter backswing makes me hit sharply and jerkily without a chance to control the force of the blow. The stroke, that is, they have had a fair amount of success in getting the ball into the hole from the shorter distances on reasonably flat greens. But those who putt in this way invariably have difficulty with the longer putts and on keen undulating greens where a delicate touch is of first importance. The man who takes a short, sharp rap at the ball will never be able to compete in these respects with the putter who swings the club.

The same thing applies with equal force to chipping and other short approach work. Billie Burke, one

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

With those of normal weight, this perspiring and then drinking water is helpful to the system; in fact, it is helpful also to the overweight individual in a general way, but as a matter of fact he doesn't need all this water, and it only increases his weight.

In other words, the tissues and spaces of the overweight hold so much more water than he needs that he has really too large a "storage tank" of water. Thus if he loses considerable water by perspiration and uses up some of the water in his storage tank, he is bound to lose some of his weight.

Overweight individuals will cut down on bread, potatoes, pastry, butter and cream in an effort to reduce their weight, but will continue to drink large quantities of water and other liquids, because liquids do not put on fat.

Strictly speaking, liquids do not put on fat tissue, but they do put on weight and they do prevent fat from being used up as readily as it would be were the liquids not taken.

It isn't a matter of water not being good for all mankind. Water is the very first thing needed to maintain the proper working of the body, just as food is needed to provide the structure of the body.

But the body at all times has a good supply of water on hand, and only needs a certain amount every day to keep its needs supplied.

Just as you see storage tanks of water on the roofs of factories to be used in an emergency, so all your tissues have a goodly supply of water stored away. This water is not in any one place like the storage tank, but in and about all the tissues, and actually forming part of the tissues themselves.

When you exercise and the perspiration pours out on the surface of the skin, then your tissues have given up that much water and you are just that much lighter in weight. Some fat tissue has been used up by the exercise, but water makes up most of the weight lost.

If, however, after exercising and losing all this water, or even if you simply perspire without taking exercise, and because you feel thirsty, drink three or four glasses of water, then immediately you are just that much heavier again.

POLICE WATCH DRUG TRAFFIC

Fear Attempts at Distribution Among East Indians —Five Under Arrest

Officers of the narcotic squad of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here are directing their attention to what appears to be the commencement of traffic in narcotics among East Indians of Victoria and surrounding districts.

Authorities are viewing with some concern recent discoveries of morphine and opium in the possession of Hindus, who have up to recently shunned the use of narcotics in any form whatever. It has been known to police authorities, however, that cultivation of poppies on a large scale was being engaged in, but it was not until a recent court action that it was learned the poppies were being processed to produce approximately 8 per cent morphine content.

PRODUCE MORPHINE
During the past three weeks Federal officers have arrested five East Indians charged with being unlawfully in possession of morphine and opium. Three of them, Heru and Sojan Singh were apprehended for having morphine produced from poppy heads and on Monday two others, Bago and Kip, were arrested after Federal authorities found a small quantity of opium in a room where the two were living. All five are on bail awaiting trial.

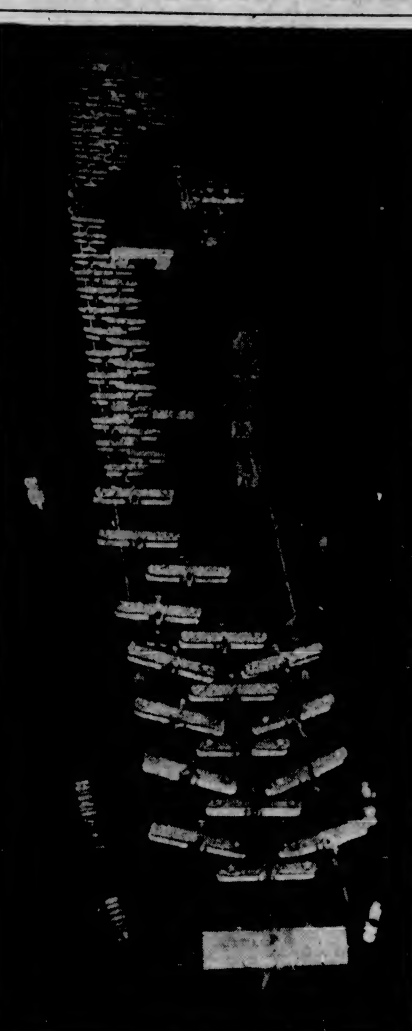

In the city police court yesterday morning, R. C. Lowe, counsel for Bago and Kip, intimated to the magistrate that a feud exists between rival groups of East Indians, one group blaming the other for police intervention. In the meantime Federal authorities are keeping an eye on a large field of poppies ready for harvest and situated in an adjoining municipality. It is understood the crop is now in litigation in the Supreme Court here. Both Bago and Kip were remanded until August 29 for hearing. Corporal M. T. Berger, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, represented the Crown at the hearing and consented to the remand. Both men were admitted to bail in the sum of $500 cash or sureties.

Word Received Here Of Death in Burma Of Rev. R. Halliday

Word has just been received of the death in Burma, on July 1, of Rev. Robert Halliday, D.D., K.I.H. His life was spent in the mission field of Burma. He was first connected with the Church of Christ and then, latterly, with the American Baptist Mission Circle and the Anglican Church.

He held a high position as interpreter for the British Government and also served in other capacities. His most notable work, however, was the translation of the Bible into Siamese, for which great service the University of Bangkok conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Many will doubtless remember during the winter of 1915, when on his way to Scotland, he spent some time with his aunt, the late Mrs. Mary Anderson, of Macaulay Point.

WIFE FOR SALE

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER XXII

"But listen, Norah," David said, sitting beside her on the table now, with one arm bracingly about her. "You don't have to hurry, darling. Here's what I want to do: I want to talk with Dad, see?—and find out what he'll do for us, see? He told me last year that he wished to goodness I would marry some nice girl, and my mother and Sidney are going abroad for a year, as soon as Sidney graduates, anyway. You close up here, get your mother and sister settled—"

"But where? Over on the Island?" "No, not over on the Island. Eve'll get a job, won't she? And your brother will help, and the Gunthers will help—and, gosh, we'll help too. If you'd like, Norah, they could live with us—honestly."

"Ah, you're nice," she said affectionately, touched.

"You've carried the whole thing long enough," he went on, warning. "Please—please be nice to me, please, Norah."

"Norah—oh, you're in here!" Eve said, coming in. "Mother thought you were outside, and that you'd catch cold."

Norah and David were standing some feet away from each other before the sentence was finished; the three young persons looked embarrassed at one another in the dim kitchen light.

"No—we were talking—" Norah explained, confusedly.

"I'm sorry," Eve said, in a hard voice. "Mother said—"

"Yes, I've got to go," David muttered in the pause, with exultation in his brief loyalty. Norah shooed him away, and he went out, shutting the entry door behind him, shutting out also the blown windy night and the wheeling stars. She turned then to speak to Eve. But Eve was gone.

Eve and David, the troubled thought of them, and a hundred other thoughts, tossed in her heart and mind as in a fire, she was in bed that Thanksgiving night. She had been carried off her feet by David's insistence, his kisses. They were engaged.

But somehow it didn't feel like being engaged. There were too many considerations other than the mere excitement of loving a man, pledging herself to him.

"Why couldn't this have happened last year! I would have been in the seventh heaven last year."

"But now there's a Barry to think about," Norah fretted, wide awake and restless again in the lonely dark. "It would be too dangerous to marry a man with another man apt to turn up any minute. And if the papers once find out about my marrying Barry, then what a fool I'll be announcing my engagement to David."

"I wish I could tell Mother. But it seems too preposterous to wait until now to tell her."

"Everyone will think I was Barry's mistress or something. I can't advertise in the papers to say that we only saw each other seven times."

An advertisement in the papers: that had started this whole merry-go-round only a year ago. David had said he would come over to Foxaway again on Sunday; they could talk then. Perhaps the whole idea would seem less terrifying then. His family would probably be cool to her; well, that couldn't be helped. They were rich; his mother would have liked David to make a better marriage. But his father was a dear.

She must tell David about Barry, of course; perhaps no one else need know, except old Judge Bailey, who knew already.

For the Dunsmuir would have Foxaway; it had been so specified in Barry's will, written more than a year ago. And since Norah wouldn't ever be Barry's wife, and might even be legally Barry's widow, she had no possible claim on the old place.

"And since I can't have Foxaway," she mused, "and since David and I will have to live in the city anyway, I might as well make a new start."

She raised herself on her elbow, shook her pillow, and retreated again into the warmth and comfort of the blankets.

Foxaway—that was the rub. She loved everything about the old farm. But now, must she be deprived of all this, lose it all? For, surely, Barry was dead, and she must take whatever steps the Howards thought wise about annulling her marriage. If it could be annulled, that would be the dignified thing to do. If she were to announce her engagement immediately.

Keith's Anne had suddenly married Fred Wilson, and Keith while not shocked, was hurt in his pride, and had done with girls forever. He told Norah so, when he came up for a cold, snowy Christmas, and they stoked fires and tramped white roads together.

Anne's faithlessness had perhaps opened his eyes to Norah's own stubborn loyalty, the brother and sister felt that they had never really known each other before. Norah bloomed under Keith's affection, Keith's admiration, and Keith was quite frankly captivated by this new, brown, capable, farm-keeping sister, with her uncanny knowledge of herbs, and the whims of cattle, markets and the whims of cattle.

He had wanted her to go back with him to Guatemala, and his mother to make her home with them both. They'd love it. Keith predicted; it was all different. Lazy, easy, white-clad, with servants obedient for what tips alone would be in a New York apartment, and a job for Norah waiting in his company.

But now, puzzling enough, Elmor wanted Mother, too, for a great part of the time. The objectionable Bill had to be on the road for periods of weeks, and Elmor and her baby would be in the new house in Scariswale Elmor, despite her inconsiderate conduct, adored her mother; she was violently opposed to the Guatemala scheme.

And to completely confuse all plans, Eve had begun, in a naughty sort of way, to quote one "Johnnie Driscoll" on all occasions. "Scornful, almost contemptuously," she did quote him. Young Doctor Driscoll was associated with the offices on Lexington Avenue, he was short and red-headed and given to innocent British puns, and marrying him would make Eve a subject of George the Fifth, but still—

"As for my going," Norah explained to her brother, on a cold March walk, "it wouldn't be possible. I belong here, and you and the others can come back here as often as you like."

"And what are you going to use for money and food?" Keith inquired.

"I'll have money."

"You mean you'll marry David?" "I mean that next month, April, I'll have to face the music. You see, David wants to announce it in May—our engagement, I mean—and to be married immediately. And before that I'll have to get a court decision, or something."

"About back salary?" "No, not that. That was always paid, but I was so stupid that I never found out until I saw Judge Bailey, in September. Barry, of course, had the cheque sent to the Bronx bank where he had started my account, and I had closed that out when we moved, and never thought of writing there. No, it's this, Keith. Norah went on, hesitatingly. "I'll have to have our—our marriage annulled."

"Your what?" "She laughed nervously. "Keith, I was married to Barry Dunsmuir. Keith stopped short on the cold, frozen road; looked at her. Norah laughed again more naturally.

"Yes, that's what I made it all so queer. That's what made me so nervous—so half-hearted, in the
